Redefining Parents' Experience

On May 23rd, our campus transformed into a vibrant hub of connection and celebration as we hosted our latest Parent-Teacher Meeting (PTM) for primary 3,4 and 5. We believe a truly effective PTM should be a collaborative experience, which is why this year we invited parents to step away from the sidelines and become active participants in the learning journey.

From traditional games that bridged generations to a creative art competition for parents, the day was designed to honour the holistic growth, creativity, and partnership that define the DPS "Happy School" philosophy.

The air was electric with enthusiasm as students took the lead during our Student-Led Exhibition. Seeing our young learners present their English, Math, and Science projects with such confidence and pride was a testament to the curiosity and critical thinking skills fostered within our classrooms.

Our Traditional Games stalls, managed expertly by our 11 AS student volunteers, created a wonderful bridge between school and home life. The spirit of creativity flourished further during our Parent Art Competition, where families worked side-by-side, sharing supplies and smiles to bring their artistic visions to life. This was complemented by our beautiful Gallery Walk, featuring student artwork thoughtfully mounted along the corridors—a visual reminder of the imagination we nurture daily.

Ultimately, the success of the day lay in the depth of our conversations. We were deeply moved by the feedback from parents who expressed their appreciation for the atmosphere of trust and support we have built together. From the prompt responsiveness of our dedicated faculty to the warm rapport shared during meetings, the day reinforced that at DPS, we are not just educating children—we are cultivating a community.

Thank you to every parent who joined us in celebrating this journey. Together, we are creating a learning environment that values the whole child, proving that when our school and home partnership thrives, the possibilities for our students are limitless.
